Dear NAPS members:

As postal supervisors we have to take the lead by example approach for a great cause that we have come to know as the yearly CFC campaign which kicks off every year at this time. The Postal Service and other federal agencies play a huge role in the nation's way of life. From keeping us safe when we travel to helping deliver vital support to the elderly and the disabled.

Postal employees are also good citizens of their communities, with thousands involved volunteering in their communities' actives and in their neighborhoods across this great country of ours. One of the ways we help support is through non-profit community services where we live and work by contributions through the Combined Federal Campaign (CFC).

The CFC enables contributors in the postal sector to direct their contributions to the specific non-profits that are doing great things in the contributor's community. Donor choice allows postal employees to give to those charities that are worker-friendly and making a difference in the lives of working families.

Members of NAPS are invited to consider a contribution to the Postal Employees Relief Fund, the United Way or a charity of your choice. The United Way a long-time partner of the NAPS Association on community services programs allocates contributed funds to worthy organizations in your community through a volunteer budget process in which our association member volunteers serve.

Whatever choices you make for yourself and your family, I encourage all NAPS members who can to participate in the Combined Federal Campaign in support of high-quality human services in your own community.
